The ideal material for cellar, wall, barns, stables, warehouses, residences, etc. We make to order hollow brick for partitions ready to plaster on. No lathing required. We make drain tile from 3 to 18 inches in diameter, and vitrified sidewalk and street paving brick, red, chocolate, brown and salt-glazed face brick. THE MAN FOR CONGRESS

One Who Has Done Something and is Capable of Doing Much More.

No man should be nominated for the important office of congressman who has not been tried and found to possess patriotism and the true qualities of statesmanship. What has Chas. E. McPherrin of Caddo, Bryan county, done that entitles him more than his opponents to the favorable consideration of the democracy as a candidate for the democratic nomination for congress in this district?

Railroad Regulation.—His record of faithful service to his party begins in Texas under the leadership of Hogg in the famous Hogg-Clarke campaign. McPherrin, although 17 years of age quit his farm work and took the stump for Hogg and the railroad commission law. Since that time he has made a careful study of this question and no man in the state understands better than he the problem of regulating interstate commerce business through congressional regulation.

McPherrin became a resident of Caddo, Ind. Ter., now Bryan county, in 1896, and his first political service to his party was to actively assist in defeating the effort of the "Gold Bugs" in capturing the party in the territorial convention at Vinita in 1896.

A Rough Rider.—Then came the Spanish-American war and he quit his business and enlisted as a private in the Rough Riders under Theodore Roosevelt, but his democracy remained untainted—no federal office for him.

Work for Statehood.—In the fight for statehood McPherrin has played a leading part. He served as a delegate to all statehood conventions held during the past twelve years.

Fight for Blanket Primary.—At the first meeting of the democratic executive committee held in the proposed state after the passage of the Enabling Act McPherrin introduced the resolution that resulted in pledging the democratic party to the adoption of the blanket primary system for the nomination of all nominees from constable to U. S. senator.

Work for Party Success.—During the campaign for election of delegates to the constitutional convention McPherrin made as many speeches and collected as much money as any man in the state, without the cost of a single cent to the party.

Author of Anti-Trust Law.—Although not a member of the constitutional convention, McPherrin is the author of Sec. 41, of Art. 9, which is our anti-trust law in the proposed state constitution; if this patriotic citizen performs no other public service this anti-trust provision will serve as an enduring monument to his thorough grasp of the problems of anti-trust legislation. Should not the author of our anti-trust law be promoted to represent us in congress and assist in placing similar effective legislation upon the national statute books when we select a democratic congress and democratic president in 1908?

There is not a voter in the district that can for a moment doubt that in point of past service to party and country Chas. E. McPherrin is the candidate entitled to preference. This man who is one of the original railroad regulators, an ex-soldier, a leader in the fight for the blanket primary in Oklahoma, and the author of our anti-trust law, is only 32 years of age; his life is before him; yet while his opponents have nothing to point to as recommending them to the consideration of the people but promises, he stands upon a matchless record of performance.

Vote for the man who has done something.

DEMOCRATS OF NATION HELP

Would Be Crime to Deny Statehood Now

Washington, May 22.—A statement was issued yesterday by Secretary Charles A. Edwards of the democratic congressional committee, pledging to Oklahoma democrats the hearty support of the committee in the political fight in the new state. The statement follows:

"The democratic situation in what will be the state of Oklahoma is eminently satisfactory, and I firmly believe we will win a signal victory there next August. I make this statement after a conference with J. B. Thompson, chairman of the Oklahoma delegation. Mr. Thompson is here for the purpose of consulting with the officers of the democratic congressional committee, concerning the campaign in Oklahoma.

"He reports the democrats there in fine fighting shape and determined to win all along the line. I have assured Mr. Thompson that his committee and the democrats of Oklahoma will have the heartiest and most enthusiastic support of both the congressional committee in their fight to elect democrats at the polls, as well as their fight to have their constitution approved.

"Acting under instructions from Chairman James Griggs I have talked lately with a number of the leading democrats of the country, and they will be active in this fight for Oklahoma. I have sent to the state committee of Oklahoma a list of twenty of the leading democrats of the house of representatives who have agreed to take the stump in Oklahoma and be in the thick of the fight from start to finish. Every man who believes in justice, believes that the constitution lately framed by the Oklahoma convention ought to be and will be approved. There are no better or more intelligent citizens in the union than those who reside in that great new commonwealth. I make this statement advisedly from personal acquaintance with them, and no people have been done a greater injustice than they, being refused statehood so long.

To deny them now what they most desire would be nothing short of a crime, that crime especially applying to the four hundred thousand school children in the new state."

ANTI-STATEHOOD CONSPIRACY.

Developments brought to light in Oklahoma City last night confirm the well established belief that the railroads of Oklahoma are prominently involved in the conspiracy to defer the granting of statehood in jointure to Oklahoma and Indian Territory.

If statehood can be deferred even a single year it will enrich the railroads of Oklahoma to the amount of three and a third millions of dollars, and this amount and more will be saved to the railroads every year that statehood is postponed.

It is estimated with a fair degree of accuracy that the passenger fares collected by the railroads of the two territories that will compose the new state of Oklahoma amount to $10,000,000 a year.

The adoption of the constitution and the establishment of state government will put in force that provision of the constitution restricting passenger fares on all railroads in the state to two cents per mile. When this law becomes effective the revenue from passenger business of these railroads, according to the argument adopted by the railway people, will be reduced to less than $7,000,000—Oklahoman.

TWENTY REASONS WHY I AM GOING TO VOTE FOR THE CONSTITUTION.

First. Because I want statehood and self government.

Second. Because I am tired of the present condition of affairs.

Third. Because it invokes the guidance of Almighty God in the affairs of the state.

Fourth. Because it provides for a broad and liberal public school system.

Fifth. Because the bill of rights is broad and liberal and guarantees every man protection in life, liberty and property.

Sixth. Because it makes a low tax rate and fixes a maximum.

Seventh. Because it provides for a liberal homestead and exemption.

Eighth. Because it provides for a low rate of interest.

Ninth. Because it puts all power into the hands of the people through the initiative and referendum.

Tenth. Because it prohibits trusts and combines.

Eleventh. Because it provides amply for the control and regulation of corporations.

Twelfth. Because it protects and safeguards the interests of the farmer, the laborer, and it puts the natural man above the artificial.

Thirteenth. Because it provides for a fine judiciary system.

Fourteenth. Because it provides for the primary system of the nomination of candidates.

Fifteenth. Because it creates a department of charities.

Sixteenth. Because it provides against long terms in office.

Seventeenth. Because it provides for a good system of good roads and highways.

Eighteenth. Because it provides for the honest and faithful performance of their duties by all officers.

Nineteenth. Because I am too broad to object to a good thing simply because the other fellow made it.

Twentieth. Because I don't want to be classed with the cranks and kickers.—J. H. Linebaugh, Atoka, I. T.

The MYSTERY of CARNEYCROFT

BY JOSEPH BROWN COOKE COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PRESS CORPORATION

CHAPTER XXIII. Another Escape.

It was still early in the evening and such was my anxiety to solve this problem without unnecessary delay that, in spite of my experiences of the day, I resolved to return again to the manhole and see how it happened to have fallen shut and if anything new could be learned from a superficial inspection of the place after dark.

I stopped long enough in the hallway to dispatch a servant to the railway station with my letter to Mac-Ardel so that it would catch the late mail and then, leaving word that I was going out for a short stroll, I put on a heavy coat and left the house.

There was an icy chill in the air that betokened snow in the near future, and I had heard one of the natives say the day before that we would have a storm and a "gol dummed big one, too," before the end of the week.

As I started down the path to the river I could not doubt the accuracy of the fellow's prophecy, and I drew my coat collar well about my neck and shivered fitfully as the rigorous blasts of the coming winter reached through my garments and chilled my very bones.

A sudden drop in temperature followed by heavy snow, in the early autumn was not uncommon in this climate, as I knew full well, and it was usually a serious matter to the farmers, whose fall crops were ruined and many of whose cattle perished; but this year was destined to see such a storm as had not been equalled in many a decade.

The wind howled and whistled through the trees and over the hill-tops and then, when a lull would come, it was emphasized by the dull, heavy moaning of the pines and hemlocks far away in the distance beyond the river. At times I even thought I could feel occasional flakes of snow striking me in the face as I strode on over the turf on my way to the tunnel entrance, but I could not be sure, and it might have been only the dust and other small bits of matter that were picked up in the gale and whirled viciously through the air.

When I reached the manhole I was not at all surprised to find that some one had been there before me and again covered it with leaves and bits of grass but, as I tried to raise it once more, never doubting that I could make my escape across the lawn if I were detected in this, my astonishment was profound at discovering that it was securely fastened down from below.

While I was kneeling down on the ground and tugging at the lid to make sure that it was locked, I thought I heard a step behind me and turned my head quickly to see if anyone was approaching. It was, however, apparently nothing more than the snapping of a branch due to the fury of the wind, and I again turned to the manhole, hoping vaguely that, even if I could not open it, I might perhaps hear some conversation through the grating that would serve as a sort of a clew to the gressome doings beneath.

As I laid my hand on the iron work again it touched a cold, heavy object which had certainly not been there a moment before, and, picking it up and holding it between me and the sky, I saw, to my amazement, that it was my own revolver, to the handle of which was tied a bit of folded paper.

For an instant my heart seemed to stop and I remained rigid on my knees with my arms upraised as I had held out my pistol for inspection, fearing to move through very terror of my own shadow. My breath caught in my throat and then came in short, heavy gasps, while the wind alternately moaned and roared about me and occasional thick damp snowflakes lightly touched my ashen face.

There certainly had been no sound or motion in front of me where I found the pistol, and I had convinced myself that the crackling I had heard at my back, and which was some distance away at best, had been due to nothing more than the wind.

At length, and with trembling fingers, I removed the paper from the stock of the weapon and stuffed it into my pocket, so that I could examine it later, and was about to rise nervously to my feet, when I again heard a slight disturbance in the shrubbery to one side of me and saw a man approaching stealthily and apparently on all fours.

With no thought of the consequences and in an actual frenzy of terror, I raised the pistol and fired at him point-blank, but the cartridge failed to explode or else the chambers were empty, and, with a frantic shriek, I sprang to my feet and threw myself headlong upon him.

He seemed entirely unprepared for this attack, but he made no sound and strove manfully to defend himself as I grappled at his throat and we rolled over and over down the velvety lawn to the river.

I was considerably hampered by my overcoat and having no desire to go into the water with him, I relaxed my efforts somewhat, when, with almost superhuman strength and emitting a cry that indicated a degree of terror equal to my own, he tore himself from my grasp and sped away in the direction of the turnpike.

Feeling, now, that I was his master, I dashed madly after him, pulling off my coat as I ran, and I was gaining slowly upon him in spite of the redoubled efforts that he made, when, on the sharp incline that led down to the road, he stumbled and fell and I was upon him again in a moment.

My victory was short lived, however, for as he struggled fiercely to free himself from my grasp and I, with equal fury, strove to choke or beat him into a state of submission, we again rolled over and over in the grass until, as luck would have it, my leg caught in a strand of the barbed wire fence that enclosed the property at his out-of-the-way point, and once more he succeeded in freeing himself and tore down the road in the direction of the village.

My clothing was torn and mud-stained, my hands and face were bruised and bleeding, I ached in every limb and was well nigh exhausted with the furious and protracted encounter, and I was hatless and coatless into the bargain, but I at least had one cause for congratulation.

In my second wrestle with my hitherto unknown assailant I had been able to get a sufficiently good view of his face to identify him positively and, in spite of the remarkable protestations of ignorance concerning the Carney-Croft mystery which I had heard him make to the widow only the night before, and which I was now forced to believe were but part of a little comedy gotten up for my special delectation, my lusty antagonist was no other than the long-suffering Jenks.

H. Woodward Withdraws.

To my friends and supporters:

Several months ago I entered the race for the democratic nomination for the office of County clerk. You have stood by me nobly, and would I know, continue so to do on through election day. Notwithstanding many of you from various parts of the country offer me every encouragement and want me to finish the race still circumstances have so changed with me that I have concluded to withdraw.

In so doing, my friends, I wish you to know I am just as thankful for your support thus far as I would be if I ran on and were elected.

With many thanks to you and the very best wishes for you and yours.

Very sincerely yours,
Henry Woodward.

VOTE FOR R. L. WILLIAMS

For the Supreme Bench==Don't be Deceived by a Corporation Trick.

The information comes that S. C. Treadwell, the railroad attorney, of Tishomingo, is to switch from the race for State Senator to that of the Supreme Bench.

What causes this sudden change of ambition on the part of Mr. Treadwell, the railroad lawyer, and at such a late hour?

It was not supposed that the railroads would permit R. L. Williams to have a seat on the Supreme Bench to construe the railroad provisions that he has so ably written in the Constitution, without opposition.

Corporate wealth does not surrender without a struggle. When it cannot control it seeks to destroy.

R. L. Williams, as Chairman of the Railroad Committee, served the people and not the railroads.

So let the people be not deceived.

Vote for R. L. Williams, who has been tried as a public servant, rather than for S. C. Treadwell, the railroad lawyer.

Married

Elder E. L. Kirtley yesterday afternoon performed a wedding ceremony that is perhaps without precedent in Ada. Several wagon loads of movers passed through Ada and a happy young pair who were with the movers decided that Ada was the best town in which to be married that they knew of. Accordingly the would-be groom came pu town to get the license, leaving the wagon down in the neighborhood of the Blue gin. The license were secured and Brother Kirtley notified that his services were needed. He went with the man, and in the shade of one of the buildings of the gin the wedding ceremony was performed. The man gave his name as A. B. Owens, and the young lady the name of Moores, both naming Shawnee as their home.

Croton Withdraws From Race.

To the Democracy of Pontotoc County. Owing to my severe affliction and long confinement to a bed of pain I have been prevented from making the personal and active canvass for the office of county judge that I intended and hoped to make at the time of my announcement. Although I am now able to be about, I have not the physical strength to make a campaign which seems to be necessary to assure success in this new county where most of us are strangers to one another and the date of the primaries is so near at hand I feel constrained to withdraw from the race.

In making this announcement I want to assure my friends who have stood by me so loyally during my affliction that I appreciate their devotion more than I can at this time express.

Dated Ada, May 22, 1907.

DRILL FOR GAS NEAR ADA

Preparations Being Made to Commence Drilling Soon.

Work is being pushed forward in drilling for gas by the company which was granted the franchise by the city council. The place for commencement of operations is located about one and one-half miles northeast of the city. J. R. Greenless of the Oklahoma Natural Gas company is here and is looking after the work. A practical man is also here. Timber for the construction of the derricks is being unloaded and hauled to the grounds where drilling is to commence. The gas company men say that the machinery has all been shipped and is now on the way to Ada. It is thought that it will be at least two weeks yet before the actual drilling will commence.

J. M. Ramey for Constable.

In this issue of The News J. M. Ramey, announces, subject to the democratic primary, for the office of constable in Ada township.

Mr. Ramey was born a democrat in Mississippi a good many years ago, and has been a consistent one through out his life. For a long time he resided in Texas. Five years ago he removed to Ada, where he has been engaged chiefly in the wagon yard and feed business.

He has never held an office; however, he has had a good deal of experience as special deputy in the service of court process. Thus he would assume the duties of constable already familiar with the work. Mr. Ramey is well known and generally liked in Ada. His friends have prevailed upon him to make the race and are bent on having him as one of our first constables. He gives the people a solemn pledge, if elected, to devote his best energies to the duties of the office.

WCPERRER MADE GOOD

Eloquent Address to Ada Democracy on Congressional Issues.

There was scarcely sufficient previous advertisement of the appointment to get a good crowd, but a number of Ada democrats gathered at the court house Tuesday night to hear Hon. Chas. E. McPherrren, candidate for congress, speak.

Mr. McPherrren made one of his characteristic, strong addresses, and his audience evidently appreciated his utterances. Taking for his text the following five measures, the speaker in eloquent and logical periods told his hearers what ought to be done for this country and pledged himself, if elected, to work untiringly for the accomplishment of same:

1. Absolute removal of all federal restrictions upon the renting, leasing and sale of allotted lands.
2. Repeal of all federal laws that exempt land from taxation.
3. Immediate sale of, unallotted land and the surface of the segregated mineral lands to actual settlers in small bodies upon deferred payments; the mineral to be retained by the state as an investment of the school lands.
4. Immediate distribution of all tribal funds and the settlement of tribal affairs—statehood with the banishment of the department of the interior from the state.
5. Promote and protect the interest of the farmer and the working man—make this a land of home owners and builders.

PICNIC AT STONEWALL

Large Crowd—Much to Eat—Weaver Makes Hit on School Land Question.

Stonewall, I. T., May 22.—A large and joyful crowd of people attended the picnic here yesterday. There was fun and food for everybody, and all visitors agreed that ours is a most hospitable people. There was also some excellent speaking by prominent candidates.

Otis B. Weaver was the only one of the candidates for state senator who spoke. He made quite an impression upon the people by his discussion of the school land issue. Professor Fentam, principal of the Stonewall schools who acted as master of ceremonies, in behalf of the citizens invited Mr. Weaver to remain over and deliver an address in the evening on the proper disposition of the state school lands. Consenting, after supper Mr. Weaver was greeted by a highly intelligent audience. His views on this all important question seemed to meet with universal favor. At the conclusion of the address he was heartily cheered. Afterward Professor Fentam remarked that he himself had given considerable study to school questions, and that he was convinced Mr. Weaver's plan is the proper solution to the school land problem, and that henceforth he expected to advocate that plan.

The people of this vicinity regard Mr. Weaver as a quasi-citizen of Stonewall, since he is materially interested in the welfare of the town.

Apple Twig Borer in the Neglected Orchard

Apple Twig Borer.

a, beetle dorsal view; a', beetle side view; b, pupa from beneath; c, grub, side view; d, apple twig showing burrow; e, burrow in tamarisk with pupa at bottom; f, stem of grape showing burrow. All enlarged except stems showing burrows. (Marlatt, Farmer's Bulletin 70, Div. Ent., U. S. Dept. of Agr.)

This insect is common on apple, cherry, pear, plum and grape. It often referred to as the grape cane-borer. This beetle is about one-third to one-half inch in length, and dark brown above and black beneath. In early spring it enters the twig by making a hole near a bud, and continues its work by making a burrow several inches in length. The insect matures in the fall, there being but one brood, and for the most part, hibernates in its larval burrow. The eggs are laid in the dying or dead roots of "green brier" (smilax), or in dead roots of the grape.

This beetle will seldom become troublesome in a well-kept orchard, as good pruning and general cleanliness about the place will remove all wood in which it is most likely to occur. If, however, a tree is infested the diseased part should be cut away and burned.

MORE TREES TO THE ACRE

By H. C. DUNLEVY

Figure 1 represents seven trees planted by the deltoid system, and we will suppose them to be one rod apart. The inner hexagon represents the exact area occupied by one tree exclusively, which area is equal to that of two of the equilateral triangles formed by the trees. Since the sine of 60 degrees equals .866 it is evident that this area equals .866 square rod. Figure 2 represents nine trees planted one rod apart in the form of squares, and the inner square represents the exact area occupied by one tree, which area is one square rod. It is now evident that when planting the same distance apart .866 acre will contain as many trees set out by the deltoid system as one acre will where the trees are set out in the form of squares, or 86.6 acres in the first case equal 100 acres in the second case. Or if a tract of land would contain under the present system of planting 1,000 trees at a given distance apart, it would under the deltoid system contain 1,000/.866 or 1,154 trees the same distance apart, or an increase of 15.4 per cent.

With suitable machines the farmer might utilize this system in planting his corn and have this percentage in his favor.

Hardy Ornamental Shrubs

One of the most satisfactory of large shrubs for planting in home grounds is the grand old "snowball." There are several varieties of viburnum, as it is known botanically. The Japanese snowball is smaller than the common American variety, but is a fine bloomer. The "highbush cranberry" closely resembles the snowball in its foliage, and has an additional attraction in its brilliant clusters of red berries which sometimes remain through the winter. In the autumn its foliage turns to bright colors, which remain until freezing weather. The varieties catalogued as "common snowball, viburnum tomentosum and "highbush cranberry" are all excellent shrubs.

Philadelphus, also known as syringa and "mock orange" has flowers which some think resemble orange blossoms. The foliage comes out rather late, but it is an extremely valuable shrub to have in a collection—especially where one has considerable room. It is as hardy as the northern oak, and does well in the shade. The best varieties are grandiflora which has large white flowers; flora pleno, with double flowers and pinnatifida, with fragrant white flowers.

Parberry is a pretty shrub for groups. Its red varieties are very ornamental in autumn and winter. The purple leaved variety makes a fine contrast with the green. Canadensis is the species native to America. Parberry laetifolia has leaves like the holly and Parberry purpurea has foliage of purple.

Hydrangea have flowers in great clusters eight to ten inches long, white when they first come out, gradually turning to a rich light purple. When cut, they dry, retaining their color well and make fine ornaments for the house in winter.

TEN ALFALFA RULES

By Dr. Beal, Michigan Agricultural College.

(By Dr. Beal, Michigan Ag. Col.)

1. Select land that is deeply drained. Swampy lands or soils in which the hard pan comes very close to the surface, will not make a proper place for alfalfa.
2. Prepare the land as for a crop of wheat.
3. If the soil is not alkaline, apply air slacked lime.
4. Sow about four pounds of good clean seed to the acre, at the time of corn planting, or else early in August, if the soil is moist then.
5. With alfalfa seed, sow orchard grass or tall oat grass; about a peck each to the acre. Excellent results may also be obtained by adding two pounds of timothy seed.
6. Under no circumstances should a so-called nurse crop be sown.
7. If nodules are not produced on the roots inoculate with soil containing them.
8. Clip young growth from one to three times.
9. Cut when a few plants of alfalfa are first in bloom.
10. Leave a moderate growth in the fall as a mulch.

Corn and Hogs.—Corn and hogs are naturally associated in the minds of farmers living in the corn belt. While it is true that many farmers feed too much corn to their hogs, it is also true that corn is the most profitable food that can be fed if it can be obtained at a low price. In the figuring of the price for corn when fed to hogs many take for a basis the price of the corn at the local railroad station. But corn on the farm must be valued less than when hauled to market, and, in some cases at least, is so far from market that the grower would not think of hauling it thither. Also, much of the corn used for hog food would not grade if placed on the market.

Barley for Horses.—Horses when worked cannot be supported upon barley quite so well as upon oats, but with animals at a medium amount of work, it is worth slightly less per pound than oats. It is more satisfactory to feed barley whole as it forms a pasty substance, as does ground wheat.

Rich Food, Rich Milk.—Rich food makes rich milk; the best cow in the world will not give good milk unless she is given food from which to make it.

IS 300 YEARS OLD

ENGLISH CHURCH IN AMSTERDAM BUILT IN 1607.

Quaint Sanctuary Still Stands and Is in Use as a House of Worship —Associated with Pilgrim Fathers.

"In the year of our Lord and Saviour 1607 and on the fourth day of the month of February after the new style about 4 of the clock in the afternoon, was the Church in the round beginne hof opened in the presence of minneer de Schout, and Ds. Petrus Plancius, minister of the Dutch Church at Amsterdam, and that church present was the pulpit brought in and set up for the use of the English Church at Amsterdam publicly erected by the consent of the honorable the Senate of the forenamed city. Which their love and bounty towards us of the English nation the Lord repay unto them a thousand fold in this life in the life to come with eternal happiness. Amen."

This extract from the curiously worded record of the English Reformed church at Amsterdam the date of the three hundredth anniversary of the building over of the picturesque old handover to the English colony. The church itself dates from about 1400, and was originally used by nuns. In 1578, when Amsterdam adopted the reformed religion, all the churches passed into the possession of those who adopted the reformed faith, but there is no record of the use made of this particular church between that date and its opening for the use of the English colony.

Congregationalists will be interested to know that this church existed while the Pilgrim fathers were in Amsterdam, and that some of them worshiped within its walls. The church has been considerably enlarged and altered since it came into possession of the English congregation, and its appearance within is quaint but not inelegant. Its present seating accommodation is about 350. This enlargement was made in 1665, when many English families took refuge in this city after the restoration of Charles II. to the throne.

throne of England in 1660. Among the interesting features of the church is a brass desk on the pulpit with the initials and date: "W. M. R. R. anno 1689," together with two candlesticks which were presented by William of Orange and Mary, king and queen of England.

KEEP WATCH OVER BODY.

Weird Vigil Maintained in Vault of Italian Church.

The story of a weird vigil is related by a correspondent at San Remo, Italy, where, in a vault beneath one of the churches, a vigil is being kept night and day over the body of a young Russian woman as it reposes in its coffin. The woman, who was married, suffered from consumption, and about three weeks ago her death from that disease was certified, whereupon her husband had the body removed to its present resting place. Eleven days later, however, the woman's relatives arrived from Russia, and at their request the coffin was opened. A remarkable discovery was then made. The body showed absolutely no traces of decomposition. The skin was soft, and retained its life tints. The lips were crimson and the wide, open eyes conveyed an uncanny impression that they saw. Doctors were hastily summoned, but were unable to make any satisfactory pronouncement on the strange affair. A watch is accordingly now being maintained in case of a return of animation.

Wild Ostriches Grow Tame.

A group of six wild ostriches were seen on the commonage on Saturday afternoon. The huge birds were disporting themselves on an ant heap only a few yards from the road. The little group seems to have made the east end of the commonage and the government reserve their home, and are often to be met with.

So tame are they that on a person approaching they simply get up from the road, where they are often lying, and walk a few yards on to the veldt and gaze composedly at the passer by. —Rhodesia Herald

BRUIN WAS PLAYING POSSUM.

Very Evident That Animal Never Had Been Quite Dead.

Bill Stimson, the veteran guide and trapper of the Rangely region, has an impediment in his speech, and many quaint stories have been told about him, says the Boston Herald.

With a companion he was visiting some bear traps he had set, when they found a large bear had gotten into one of the traps, broken the chain, and gone off with the trap on his foot.

They followed the trail some distance, when they saw the bear in a little gully ahead of them. Both fired, the bear falling over and remaining motionless. Being rather tired from the tramp they sat down to rest and smoke. After some little time, thinking they must be moving, Bill arose, drew his hunting knife, walked down to where the bear was, and picking up a hind foot, started to remove the pelt.

At the first cut of the knife the bear gave a kick that landed Bill several feet away. Jumping up excitedly, Bill cried:

B-b-b-y gosh, that b-b-bear hain't d-d-dead, and he hain't b-b-been d-d-dead all day."

OUT OF THE PERPENDICULAR.

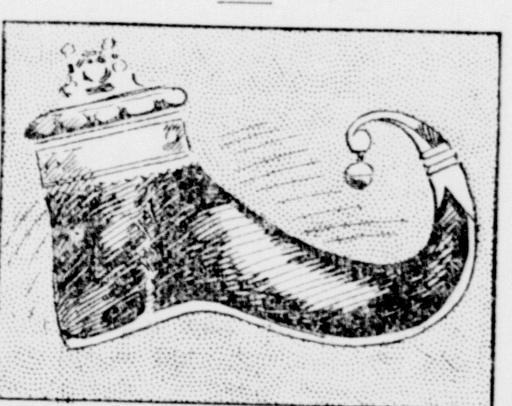

Peculiar Crooked House on the Estate of English Earl.

On the estate of Earl Dudley at Himley, Staffs, England, there is a curious habitation known as "The Crooked House." It is altogether out of the perpendicular, and slants towards the south end, which is heavily shored up with thick red-brick buttresses. These peculiarities are the result of mining operations—the understratum of the earth in these parts being completely "honeycombed." The clocks on the walls, although absolutely perpendicular, as their pendulums testify, appear to be hanging sideways at a very pronounced angle. A short glass shelf, one end of which appears to be a foot higher than the other, proves it to be absolutely level; while in the tap-room is a table which is apparently slanting, but out which if round marbles are placed at the seemingly lower end they roll to all appearance uphill to the top of the table and fall over with a bump.

Incane Woman's Growsome Deed.

A growsome spectacle was witnessed in the Montmartre cemetery at St. Etienne, France, the other evening. One of the keepers going round found a woman crouching among what looked like fragments of chips and piles of earth, in which she was digging vigorously with her nails. Going to the spot he was horrified to see an opened grave and the exposed bodies of three children, which had been taken from their smothered coffins. One of the bodies the woman clutched in her hands. Dragging her away by force to the superintendent, it became apparent from a few questions that the poor creature was insane. The children were her own, and sorrow had deprived her of reason. She had got into the cemetery with a pick by night.

DRINKING CUP.

This cup is sixteenth century German. It is of gilt leather with silver gilt mounts.

Fox and a Rabbit.

A fox was seen coming down a pass in the hills followed by a rabbit, which came along at a smart pace and seemed impelled by an overpowering curiosity, says Country Life. Fox and rabbit presently disappeared into a patch of covert, and almost immediately the fox was seen to emerge with the unfortunate rabbit dead in its jaws.

The whole tableau was witnessed by persons of unimpeachable veracity, one of them a very careful observer of wild life. It was perfectly evident to them that the fox had in some way fascinated the rabbit and was consciously following out a plan devised for its destruction. As for the rabbit, it was clearly incapable of avoiding its doom.

Ruffs Always Becoming

TULLE, LACE, CHIFFON AND FEATHERS REPLACE FUR.

Some of the Popular Fancies in Scarfs Can Easily Be Made at Home —Little Capes are Smart.

To many women, and especially to those past their youth, a boa or neck ruff is so becoming that even after winter furs are laid aside baos of tulle, lace, chiffon or feathers, such as ostrich or marabou, are adopted.

Pretty Neck Ruffs.

Many of these scarfs can easily be made at home, the two models illustrated being especially practical, but scarfs of marabou and ostrich feathers are also very fashionable, and can be had in the shops at quite moderate prices.

There are, too, some very attractive scarfs of soft lace laid over sheer silk, with a veiling of chiffon, and bordered by a narrow line of ostrich or marabou or by a ruffling of little frills of lace or silk.

For the fluffy neck ruffs plain tulle and the ring-dot net are favorite materials, and, although fancy prices are asked for these ruffs in the fashionable millinery shops and large stores, they can be made at home at a fraction of the expense. Such a ruche is sketched in the drawing, the model pictured showing a deep plaited ruff of brown tulle mounted on a stiffened silk band, and finished by silk loops and bows in front.

Another very pretty model was made of black ring-dot net, four deep plisse frills being used, with another of tulle next the face. A cluster of black silk poppies with yellow centers was tucked among the tulle in the front, which was finished with many ribbon loops and ends of black velvet and net.

Another very odd ruff was also made of ring-dot net, each ruffle being bordered with satin ribbon. On the ribbon at intervals were set little satin-covered buttons, encircled by frills of the narrowest valenciennes edging.

Little capes of broadcloth, usually with a touch of black somewhere about them, are made up on the "Carriek" lines, and are very smart and becoming for driving or for use in the country and at the seaside. One very pretty model made in the Carriek style was of bright cherry broadcloth, each of three circular capes being finished by a stitched band of the same. The trimming consisted of a small rounded collar of black, showing scanty touches of gold braid, the lower points of the wrap also showing rounded tabs of black velvet.

HERE ARE SOME GOOD FORFEITS

Bound to Furnish Amusement at Evening Party.

Some weeks ago a young correspondent wrote for a list of forfeits to be used at an evening party. I think the following will prove acceptable as they are all "doable" and good ones for any occasion:

1. Act in pantomime the visit of a doctor.
2. Make a fool's cap and place on the head of the most dignified person present.
3. Deliver an oration lasting ten minutes on "George Washington."
4. Sing "Mary Had a Little Lamb" in operatic style.
5. Draw a picture of a cow.
6. Tell a pathetic story.
7. Sing a comic song.
8. Sing a lullaby to a sofa pillow.
9. Compose a jingle of four lines.
10. Tell a laughable story.
11. Make a shadow picture on the wall.
12. Show an imitation of a small boy being sent to bed.
13. Sneeze in five different ways.
14. Shake hands in ten different styles.
15. Recite "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck" in dramatic manner.
16. Laugh in five different ways.
17. Imitate two cats fighting.
18. Show how a man acts when he is lost.
19. Smile in five different ways.
20. Tip your hat in as many ways as possible.
21. Imitate the walk of a dude.
22. Auction off an umbrella.
23. Be a book agent and sell a book.
24. Show how a chap writes his first love letter.
25. Name the things you would do with a million dollars.

A Spinster Tea.

This party was given by a dozen bachelor maids as the farewell party to one of their number who had just announced her engagement. It was very funny, each girl was requested to bring the photograph of a man whom she was supposed to have "refused" and to tell her reasons why she preferred to be a spinster. They were also asked to come dressed as typical old maids, with corkscrew curls, glasses, etc. Bachelor buttons were used on the table and a few blossoms attached to the favors, which were tiny.

kettles. After the dainty repast cards were passed with the following content:

1. Always in pairs. (Cup and saucer.)
2. Would they were here. (Jolly boys) boy dolls.
3. Front curls. (Kid curls.)
4. Objects of envy. (Preserved pears—pairs.)
5. Warranted to pop. (Bottle of ginger ale.)
6. A solace. (Tea.)
7. Sadly missed. (Sugar kisses.)
8. Cause of woe. (A bit of spiced tongue.)
9. Courtship. (A bowl of mush, two spoons, sugar.)
10. A lover. (A diamond ring.)
11. Our tears. (Salt.)
12. Left over. (A heart.)

These objects were on a table in the dining-room and the hostess said it was the "spinster menu." Afterwards the time was spent in hearing why the maidens had refused their offers and their reasons for preferring "spinsterhood." Of course it was all done to jokingly try to make the engaged girl repent her bargain. The guests reported "the best fun ever" and at last accounts the little bride-to-be was busy with the joyful wedding preparations.

A Sewing Party.

A correspondent writes that she wishes to give a surprise party for her sister who is to be married late in May and wishes to know if it would be proper for her to give a linen shower or should such an affair be left for the friends?

I should advise letting the "shower" be given by some one outside the family, but the sister may arrange a very pleasant surprise by following out these suggestions: Write the invitations on heart-shaped cards, with "thimbles" in one corner, so all will be prepared to sew. Have ready for hemming a half dozen dish towels, dusters, roller towels and heavy muslin for shoe cloths, which will be greatly appreciated by both the new housewife and the bachelors. This will be a pleasant surprise for the bride-elect. For refreshments, pass chicken salad sandwiches, chocolate and tea (it is always well to give a choice of beverages), olives, nuts, heart-shaped cakes iced in pink and white, decorated with blanch almonds, ice cream or a sherbet. It would be pretty to lay a pink or white rose on each plate.

FOULARD RIPPLES INTO FAVOR

Material Promises to Be Extremely Popular This Season.

Foulard, from all present indications, will be extremely smart this year, although it has been rather out of favor for some time. So many of the newest models call for a material that is rather soft and clinging and easily draped that soft silks will be in nearly as great demand as was the case last year.

For rough and ready shirt waist dresses foulards are excellent. Even the less expensive quality wears admirably and the silk is delightfully light and cool.

The polka dots of last spring and summer have given way to stripes of all widths and colors. There is the wide one-inch stripe and the narrowest threadlike band of colors, and some of the foulards have stripes of graduated widths arranged in clusters or verging gradually from wide to narrow.

Good effects can be obtained in the wide tucks by placing the solid colors together wherever the material needs to be gathered in, as about the waist and hips. Sometimes the stripes are in two or more tones of the same shade and again the wide stripes against any color design is seen.

THE MAN FOR CONGRESS

One Who Has Done Something and is Capable of Doing Much More.

No man should be nominated for the important office of congressman who has not been tried and found to possess patriotism and the true qualities of statesmanship. What has Chas. E. McPherrin of Caddo, Bryan county, done that entitles him more than his opponents to the favorable consideration of the democracy as a candidate for the democratic nomination for congress in this district?

Railroad Regulation.—His record of faithful service to his party begins in Texas under the leadership of Hogg in the famous Hogg-Clarke campaign. McPherrin, although 17 years of age quit his farm work and took the stump for Hogg and the railroad commission law. Since that time he has made a careful study of this question and no man in the state understands better than he the problem of regulating interstate commerce business through congressional legislation.

McPherrin became a resident of Caddo, Ind. Ter., now Bryan county, in 1896, and his first political service to his party was to actively assist in defeating the effort of the "Gold Bugs" in capturing the party in the territorial convention at Vinita in 1896.

A Rough Rider.—Then came the Spanish-American war and he quit his business and enlisted as a private in the Rough Riders under Theodore Roosevelt but his democracy remained undimmed—no federal office for him.

Work for Statehood.—In the fight for statehood McPherrin has played a leading part. He served as a delegate to all statehood conventions held during the past twelve years.

Fight for Blanket Primary.—At the first meeting of the democratic executive committee held in the proposed state after the passage of the Enabling Act McPherrin introduced the resolution that resulted in pledging the democratic party to the adoption of the blanket primary system for the nomination of all nominees from contestable to U. S. senator.

Work for Party Success.—During the campaign for election of delegates to the constitutional convention McPherrin made as many speeches and collected as much money as any man in the state, without the cost of a single cent to the party.

Author of Anti-Trust Law.—Although not a member of the constitutional convention, McPherrin is the author of Sec. 41, of Art. 9, which is our anti-trust law in the proposed state constitution. If this patriotic citizen performs no other public service this anti-trust provision will serve as an enduring monument to his thorough grasp of the problems of anti-trust legislation. Should not the author of our anti-trust law be promoted to represent us in congress and assist in placing similar effective legislation upon the national statute books when we select a democratic congress and democratic president in 1908?

There is not a voter in the district that can for a moment doubt that in point of past service to party and country Chas. E. McPherrin is the candidate entitled to preference. This man who is one of the original railroad regulators, an ex-soldier, a leader in the fight for the blanket primary in Oklahoma, and the author of our anti-trust law, is only 32 years of age, his life is before him, yet while his opponents have nothing to point to as recommending them to the consideration of the people but promises, he stands upon a matchless record of performance.

Vote for the man who has done something.

DEMOCRATS OF NATION HELP

Would Be Crime to Deny Statehood Now

Washington, May 22.—A statement was issued yesterday by Secretary Charles A. Edwards of the democratic congressional committee, pledging to Oklahoma democrats the hearty support of the committee in the political fight in the new state. The statement follows:

The democratic situation in what will be the state of Oklahoma is eminently satisfactory, and I firmly believe we will win a signal victory there next August. I make this statement after a conference with J. B. Thompson, chairman of the Oklahoma delegation. Mr. Thompson is here for the purpose of consulting with the officers of the democratic congressional committee, concerning the campaign in Oklahoma.

He reports the democrats there in fine fighting shape and determined to win all along the line. I have assured Mr. Thompson that his committee and the democrats of Oklahoma will have the heartiest and most enthusiastic support of both the congressional committee in their fight to elect democrats at the polls, as well as their right to have their constitution approved. "Acting under instructions from Chairman James Griggs I have talked lately with a number of the leading democrats of the country, and they will be active in this fight for Oklahoma. I have sent to the state committee of Oklahoma a list of twenty of the leading democrats of the house of representatives who have agreed to take the stump in Oklahoma and be in the thick of the fight from start to finish. Every man who believes in justice, believes that the constitution lately framed by the Oklahoma convention ought to be and will be approved. There are no better or more intelligent citizens in the nation than those who reside in that great new commonwealth. I make this statement advisedly from personal acquaintance with them, and no people have been done a greater injustice than they, being refused statehood so long.

To deny them now what they most desire would be nothing short of a crime, that crime especially applying to the four hundred thousand school children in the new state."

DRILL FOR GAS NEAR ADA

Preparations Being Made to Commence Drilling Soon.

Work is being pushed forward in drilling for gas by the company which was granted the franchise by the city council. The place for commencement of operations is located about one and one half miles northeast of the city. R. Greenless of the Oklahoma Natural Gas company is here and is looking after the work. A practical man is also here. Timber for the construction of the derricks is being unloaded and hauled to the grounds where drilling is to commence. The gas company men say that the machinery has all been shipped and is now on the way to Ada. It is thought that it will be at least two weeks yet before the actual drilling will commence.

J. M. Ramey for Constable.

In this issue of The News J. M. Ramey announces subject to the democratic primary for the office of constable in Ada township.

Mr. Ramey was born a democrat in Mississippi a good many years ago and has been a consistent one through out his life. For a long time he resided in Texas. Five years ago he removed to Ada where he has been engaged chiefly in the wagon yard and feed business.

He has never held an office, however, he has had a good deal of experience as special deputy in the service of court process. Thus he would assume the duties of constable already familiar with the work. Mr. Ramey is well known and generally liked in Ada. His friends have prevailed upon him to make the race and are not on having him as one of our first constables. He gives the people a solemn pledge if elected to devote his best energies to the duties of the office.

Apple Twig Borer in the Neglected Orchard

Apple Twig Borer.

a. Beetle dorsal view; a', beetle side view; b. pupa from beneath; c. grub, side view; d. apple twig showing burrow; e. burrow in tamarisk with pupa at bottom; f. stem of grape showing burrow. All enlarged except stems showing burrows. (Mariett, Farmer's Bulletin 10, Div. Ent., U. S. Dept. of Agr.)

This insect is common on apple, cherry, pear, plum and grape. It often referred to as the grape cane-borer. This beetle is about one-third to one-half inch in length, and dark brown above and black beneath. In early spring it enters the twig by making a hole near a bud, and continues its work by making a burrow several inches in length. The insect matures in the fall, there being but one brood, and for the most part, hibernates in

MORE TREES TO THE ACRE

By H. C. DUNLEVY

sively, which area is equal to that of two of the equilateral triangles formed by the trees. Since the sine of 60 degrees equal .866 it is evident that this area equals .866 square rod. Figure 2 represents nine trees planted one rod apart in the form of squares, and the inner square represents the exact area occupied by one tree, which area is one square rod. It is now evident that when planting the same distance apart .866 acre will contain as many trees set out by the delton system as one acre will where the trees are set out in the form of squares, or .866 acres in the first case equal 100 acres in the second case. Or if a tract of land would contain under the present system of planting 1,000 trees at a given distance apart, it would under the delton system contain 1,099 (.866 or 1.154 trees the same distance apart, or an increase of 15.4 per cent.

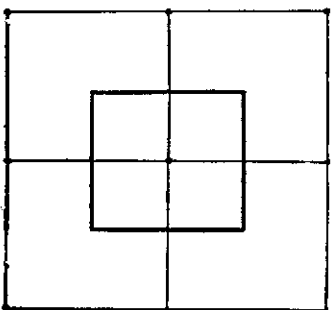

Fig. 2. The Way Trees Are Ordinarily Planted.

With suitable machines the farmer might utilize this system in planting his corn and have this percentage in his favor.

Hardy Ornamental Shrubs

One of the most satisfactory of large shrubs for planting in home grounds is the grand old "snowball." There are several varieties of viburnum, as it is known botanically. The Japanese snowball is smaller than the common American variety, but is a fine bloomer. The "highbush cranberry" closely resembles the snowball in its foliage, and has an additional attraction in its brilliant clusters of red berries which sometimes remain through the winter. In the autumn its foliage turns to bright colors, which remain until freezing weather. The varieties catalogued as "common snowball," viburnum tomentosum and "highbush cranberry" are all excellent shrubs.

Philadelphus, also known as syringa and "mock orange" has flowers which some think resemble orange blossoms. The foliage comes out rather late, but it is an extremely valuable shrub to have in a collection—especially where one has considerable room. It is as hardy as the northern oak, and does well in the shade. The best varieties are grandiflora which has large white flowers; form plena, with double flowers and pomonensis, with fragrant white flowers.

Parquetry is a pretty shrub for groups. Its red varieties are very ornamental in autumn and winter. The purple leaved variety makes a fine contrast with the green. Canadensis is the species native to America. Parquetry lauchella has leaves like the holly and barberry purpurea has foliage of purple.

Hydrangeas have flowers in great clusters eight to ten inches long, white when they first come out, gradually turning to a rich light purple. When cut, they dry, retaining their color well and make fine ornaments for the house in winter.

TEN ALFALFA RULES

By Dr. Beal, Michigan Agricultural College.

(By Dr. Beal, Michigan Agr. Col.)

1. Select land that is deeply drained. Swampy lands or soils in which the hard pan comes very close to the surface, will not make a proper place for alfalfa.
2. Prepare the land as for a crop of wheat.
3. If the soil is not alkaline, apply air slacked lime.
4. Sow about four pounds of good clean seed to the acre, at the time of corn planting, or else early in August, if the soil is moist then.
5. With alfalfa seed, sow orchard grass or tall oat grass; about a peck each to the acre. Excellent results may also be obtained by adding two pounds of timothy seed.
6. Under no circumstances should a so-called nurse crop be sown.
7. If nodules are not produced on the roots inoculate with soil containing them.
8. Clip young growth from one to three times.
9. Cut when a few plants of alfalfa are first in bloom.
10. Leave a moderate growth in the fall as a mulch.

Corn and Hogs.—Corn and hogs are naturally associated in the minds of farmers living in the corn belt. While it is true that many farmers feed too much corn to their hogs, it is also true that corn is the most profitable food that can be fed if it can be obtained at a low price. In the figuring of the price for corn when fed to hogs many take for a basis the price of the corn at the local railroad station. But corn on the farm must be valued less than when hauled to market, and, in some cases at least, is so far from market that the grower would not think of hauling it thither. Also, much of the corn used for hog food would not grade if placed on the market.

Barley for Horses.—Horses when worked cannot be supported upon barley quite so well as upon oats, but with animals at a medium amount of work, it is worth slightly less per pound than oats. It is more satisfactory to feed barley whole as it forms a pasty substance, as does ground wheat.

Rich Food, Rich Milk.—Rich food makes rich milk; the best cow in the world will not give good milk unless she is given food from which to make it.

IS 300 YEARS OLD

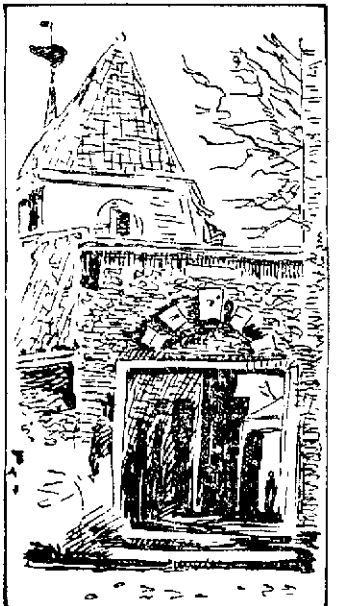

ENGLISH CHURCH IN AMSTERDAM BUILT IN 1607.

Quaint Sanctuary Still Stands and is in Use as a House of Worship —Associated with Pilgrim Fathers.

"In the years of our Lord and Saviour 1607 and on the fourth day of the month of February after the new stile about 4 of the clock in the afternoon, was the Church in the round beginne loff opened in the presence of nijnheer de Schout, and Ds. Petrus, Planclus, minister of the Dutch Church at Amsterdam, and att that present was the pulpit brought in and sett up for the use of the English Church at Amsterdam publicly erected by the consent of the honourable the Senate of the forenamed city. Which they love and bounty towards us of the English nation the Lord repay unto them a thousand fold in this life in the life to come with eternal happiness. Amen."

This extract from the curiously worded record of the English Reformed church at Amsterdam the date of the three hundredth anniversary of the handing over of the picturesque old building to the English colony. The church itself dates from about 1400, and was originally used by nuns. In 1578, when Amsterdam adopted the reformed religion, all the churches passed into the possession of those who adopted the reformed faith, but there is no record of the use made of this particular church between that date and its opening for the use of the English colony.

Congregationalists will be interested to know that this church existed while the Pilgrim fathers were in Amsterdam, and that some of them worshipped within its walls. The church has been considerably enlarged and altered since it came into possession of the English congregation, and its appearance within is quaint but not inelegant. Its present seating accommodation is about 350. This enlargement was made in 1655, when many English families took refuge in this city after the restoration of Charles II. to the throne of England in 1660. Among the interesting features of the church is a brass desk on the pulpit with the initials and date: "W. M. R. R. anno 1689," together with two candlesticks which were presented by William of Orange and Mary, king and queen of England.

KEEP WATCH OVER BODY.

Weird Vigil Maintained in Vault of Italian Church.

The story of a weird vigil is related by a correspondent at San Remo, Italy, where, in a vault beneath one of the churches watch is being kept night and day over the body of a young Russian woman as it reposes in its coffin.

The woman, who was married, suffered from consumption, and about three weeks ago her death from that disease was certified, whereupon her husband had the body removed to its present resting place. Eleven days later, however, the woman's relatives arrived from Russia, and at their request the coffin was opened. A remarkable discovery was then made. The body showed absolutely no traces of decomposition. The skin was soft, and retained its life tints. The lips were crimson and the wide, open eyes conveyed an uncanny impression that they saw. Doctors were hastily summoned, but were unable to make any satisfactory pronouncement on the strange affair. A watch is accordingly now being maintained in case of a return of animation.

Wild Ostriches Grow Tame.

A group of six wild ostriches were seen on the commons at Saturday afternoon. The large birds were disporting themselves on an open heap only a few yards from the road. The little group seems to have made the east end of the commons and the government reserve their home, and are often to be met with.

So tame are they that on a person approaching they simply get up from the road, where they are often lying, and walk a few yards on to the verge and gaze composedly at the passer by. —Rhodesia Herald

BEEN QUITE DEAD.

Very Evident That Animal Never Had

Bill Stinson, the veteran guide and trapper of the Rangely region, has an impediment in his speech, and many quaint stories have been told about him, says the Boston Herald.

With a companion he was visiting some bear traps they had set, when they found a large bear had gotten into one of the traps, broken the chain, and gone off with the trap on his foot.

They followed the trail some distance, when they saw the bear in a little gully ahead of them. Both fired, the bear falling over and remaining motionless. Being rather tired from the tramp they sat down to rest and smoke. After some little time, thinking they must be moving, Bill arose, drew his hunting knife, walked down to where the bear was, and picking up a hind foot, started to remove the pelt.

At the first cut of the knife the bear gave a kick that landed Bill several feet away. Jumping up excitedly, Bill cried:

"B-b-b-gosh, that b-b-bear hain't d-d-dead, and he hain't b-b-been d-d-dead all day."

OUT OF THE PERPENDICULAR.

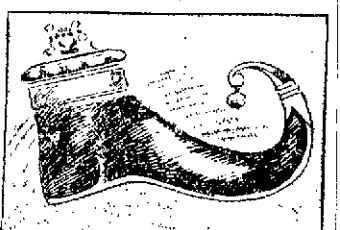

Peculiar Crooked House on the Estate of English Earl.

On the estate of Earl Dudley at Hindley, Staffs, England, there is a curious habitation known as "The Crooked House." It is altogether out of the perpendicular, and slants towards the south end, which is heavily shored up with thick red-brick buttresses. These peculiarities are the result of mining operations—the underground of the earth in these parts being completely "honeycombed." The clocks on the walls, although absolutely perpendicular, as their pendulums testify, appear to be hanging sideways at a very pronounced angle. A short glass shelf, one end of which appears to be a foot higher than the other, proves it to be absolutely level; while in the tap-room is a table which is apparently slanting, but on which if round marbles are placed at the seemingly lower end they roll to all appearance uphill to the top of the table and fall over with a bump.

Insane Woman's Growsome Deed.

A growsome spectacle was witnessed in the Montmartre cemetery at St. Etienne, France, the other evening. One of the keepers going round found a woman crouching among what looked like fragments of chips and piles of earth, in which she was digging vigorously with her nails. Going to the spot he was horrified to see an opened grave and the exposed bodies of three children, which had been taken from their smothered coffins. One of the bodies the woman clutched in her hands. Dragging her away by force to the superintendent, it became apparent from a few questions that the poor creature was insane. The children were her own, and sorrow had deprived her of reason. She had got into the cemetery with a pick by night.

DRINKING CUP.

This cup is sixteenth century German. It is of gilt leather with silver gilt mounts.

Fox and a Rabbit.

A fox was seen coming down a pass in the hills followed by a rabbit, which came along at a smart pace and seemed impelled by an overpowering curiosity, says Country Life. Fox and rabbit presently disappeared into a patch of covert, and almost immediately the fox was seen to emerge with the unfortunate rabbit dead in its jaws.

The whole tale was witnessed by persons of unimpeachable veracity, one of them a very careful observer of wild life. It was perfectly evident to them that the fox had in some way fascinated the rabbit and was consciously following out a plan devised for its destruction. As for the rabbit, it was clearly incapable of avoiding its doom.

Ruffs Always Becoming

TULLE, LACE, CHIFFON AND FEATHERS REPLACE FUR.

Some of the Popular Fancies in Scarfs Can Easily Be Made at Home —Little Capes are Smart.

To many women, and especially to those past their youth, a boa or neck ruff is so becoming that even after winter furs are laid aside baos of tulle, lace, chiffon or feathers, such as ostrich or marabou, are adopted.

Pretty Neck Ruffs.

Many of these scarfs can easily be made at home, the two models illustrated being especially practical, but scarfs of marabou and ostrich feathers are also very fashionable, and can be had in the shops at quite moderate prices.

There are, too, some very attractive scarfs of soft lace laid over sheer silk, with a velvet or chiffon, and bordered by a narrow line of ostrich or marabou or by a ruffling of little frills of lace or silk.

For the fluffy neck ruches plain tulle and the ring-dot net are favorite materials, and, although fancy prices are asked for these ruches in the fashionable millinery shops and large stores, they can be made at home at a fraction of the expense. Such a ruche is sketched in the drawing, the model pictured showing a deep plaited ruff of brown tulle mounted on a stiffened silk band, and finished by silk loops and bows in front.

Another very pretty model was made of black ring-dot net, four deep plisse frills being used, with another of tulle next the face. A cluster of black silk poppies with yellow centers was tucked among the tulle in the front, which was finished with many ribbon loops and ends of black velvet and net.

Another very odd ruff was also made of ring-dot net, each ruffle being bordered with satin ribbon. On the ribbon at intervals were set little satin-covered buttons, encircled by frills of the narrowest valenciennes edging.

Little capes of broadcloth, usually with a touch of black somewhere about them, are made up on the "Carriek" lines, and are very smart and becoming for driving or for use in the country and at the seaside. One very pretty model made in the Carriek style was of bright cherry broadcloth, each of three circular capes being finished by a stitched band of the same. The trimming consisted of a small rounded collar of black, showing scanty touches of gold braid, the lower points of the wrap also showing rounded tabs of black velvet.

HERE ARE SOME GOOD FORFEITS

Bound to Furnish Amusement at Evening Party.

Some weeks ago a young correspondent wrote for a list of forfeits to be used at an evening party. I think the following will prove acceptable as they are all "doable" and good ones for any occasion:

1. Act in pantomime the visit of a doctor.
2. Make a fool's cap and place on the head of the most dignified person present.
3. Deliver an oration lasting ten minutes on "George Washington."
4. Sing "Mary Had a Little Lamb" in operatic style.
5. Draw a picture of a cow.
6. Tell a pathetic story.
7. Sing a comic song.
8. Sing a lullaby to a sofa pillow.
9. Compose a finale of four lines.
10. Tell a laughable story.
11. Make a shadow picture on the wall.
12. Show an imitation of a small boy being sent to bed.
13. Sneeze in five different ways.
14. Shake hands in ten different styles.
15. Recite "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck" in dramatic manner.
16. Laugh in five different ways.
17. Imitate two cats fighting.
18. Show how a man acts when he is lost.
19. Smile in five different ways.
20. Tip your hat in as many ways as possible.
21. Imitate the walk of a dodo.
22. Auction off an umbrella.
23. Be a book agent and sell a book.
24. Show how a chap writes his first love letter.
25. Name the things you would do with a million dollars.

A Spinster Tea.

This party was given by a dozen bachelor maids as the farewell party to one of their number who had just announced her engagement. It was very funny, each girl was requested to bring the photograph of a man whom she was supposed to have "refused" and to tell her reasons why she preferred to be a spinster. They were also asked to come dressed as typical old maids, with curl-crowns, glasses, etc. Bachelor buttons were used on the table and a few blossoms attached to the favors, which were tiny kettles. After the dainty repast cards were passed with the following content:

1. Always in pairs. (Cup and saucer.)
2. Would they were here. (Jolly boys) boy dolls.
3. Front curls. (Kid curlers.)
4. Objects of envy. (Preserved pears—pairs.)
5. Warranted to pop. (Bottle of ginger ale.)
6. A solace. (Tea.)
7. Sadly missed. (Sugar kisses.)
8. Cause of woe. (A bit of spiced tongue.)
9. Courtship. (A bowl of mush, two spoons, sugar.)
10. A lover. (A diamond ring.)
11. Our tears. (Salt.)
12. Left over. (A heart.)

These objects were on a table in the dining-room and the hostess said it was the "spinster menu." Afterwards the time was spent in hearing why the maidens had refused their offers and their reasons for preferring "spinsterhood." Of course it was all done to jokingly try to make the engaged girl repent her bargain. The guests reported "the best fun ever" and at last accounts the little bride-to-be was busy with the joyful wedding preparations.

A Sewing Party. A correspondent writes that she wishes to give a surprise party for her sister who is to be married late in May and wishes to know if it would be proper for her to give a linen shower or should such an affair be left for the friends?

I should advise letting the "shower" be given by some one outside the family, but the sister may arrange a very pleasant surprise by following out these suggestions: Write the invitations on heart-shaped cards, with "thumbs" in one corner, so all will be prepared to sew. Have ready for hemming a half dozen dish towels, dusters, roller towels and heavy muslin for shoe cloths, which will be greatly appreciated by both the new housewife and the bachelorette. This will be a pleasant surprise for the bride-elect. For refreshments, pass chicken salad sandwiches, chocolate and tea (it is always well to give a choice of beverages), olives, nuts, heart-shaped cakes iced in pink and white, decorated with blanched almonds, ice cream or a sherbet. It would be pretty to lay a pink or white rose on each plate.

MADAME MERRE.

FOULARD RIPPLES INTO FAVOR

Material Promises to Be Extremely Popular This Season.

Foulard, from all present indications, will be extremely smart this year, although it has been rather out of favor for some time. So many of the newest models call for a material that is rather soft and clinging and easily draped that soft silks will be in nearly as great demand as was the case last year.

For rough and ready shirt waist dresses foulards are excellent. Even the less expensive quality wears admirably and the silk is delightfully light and cool.

The polka dots of last spring and summer have given way to stripes of all widths and colors. There is the wide one-inch stripe and the narrowest, the delicate band of colors, and some of the foulards have strips of graduated widths arranged in clusters or veranda gradually from wide to narrow.

Good effects can be obtained in the wide tucks by placing the solid colors together wherever the material needs to be gathered in, as about the waist and hips. Sometimes the stripes are in two or more tones of the same shade and again the white stripes against any color design is seen.

THE MAN FOR CONGRESS

One Who Has Done Something and is Capable of Doing Much More.

No man should be nominated for the important office of congressman who has not been tried and found to possess patriotism and the true qualities of statesmanship. What has Chas. E. McPherrin of Caddo, Bryan county, done that entitles him more than his opponents to the favorable consideration of the democracy as a candidate for the democratic nomination for congress in this district?

Railroad Regulation.—His record of faithful service to his party begins in Texas under the leadership of Hogg in the famous Hogg-Clarke campaign. McPherrin, although 17 years of age quit his farm work and took the stump for Hogg and the railroad commission law. Since that time he has made a careful study of this question and no man in the state understands better than he the problem of regulating interstate commerce business through congressional regulation.

McPherrin became a resident of Caddo, Ind. Ter., now Bryan county, in 1896, and his first political service to his party was to actively assist in defeating the effort of the "Gold Bugs" in capturing the party in the territorial convention at Vinola in 1896.

A Rough Rider.—Then came the Spanish-American war and he quit his business and enlisted as a private in the Rough Riders under Theodore Roosevelt. But his democracy remained undimmed—no federal office for him.

Work for Statehood.—In the fight for statehood McPherrin has played a leading part. He served as a delegate to all statehood conventions held during the past twelve years.

Fight for Blanket Primary.—At the first meeting of the democratic executive committee held in the proposed state after the passage of the Enabling Act McPherrin introduced the resolution that resulted in pledging the democratic party to the adoption of the blanket primary system for the nomination of all nominees from constitution to U. S. senator.

Work for Party Success.—During the campaign for election of delegates to the constitutional convention McPherrin made as many speeches and collected as much money as any man in the state, without the cost of a single cent to the party.

Author of Anti-Trust Law.—Although not a member of the constitutional convention, McPherrin is the author of Sec. 41, of Art. 9, which is our anti-trust law in the proposed state constitution; if this patriotic citizen performs no other public service this anti-trust provision will serve as an enduring monument to his thorough grasp of the problems of anti-trust legislation. Should not the author of our anti-trust law be promoted to represent us in congress and assist in placing similar effective legislation upon the national statute books when we select a democratic congress and democratic president in 1908?

There is not a voter in the district that can for a moment doubt that in point of past service to party and country Chas. E. McPherrin is the candidate entitled to preference. This man who is one of the original railroad regulators, an ex-soldier, a leader in the fight for the blanket primary in Oklahoma, and the author of our anti-trust law, is only 32 years of age, his life is before him, yet while his opponents have nothing to point to as recommending them to the consideration of the people but promises, he stands upon a matchless record of performance.

Vote for the man who has done something.

DEMOCRATS OF NATION HELP

Would Be Crime to Deny Statehood Now

Washington, May 22.—A statement was issued yesterday by Secretary Charles A. Edwards of the democratic congressional committee, pledging to Oklahoma democrats the hearty support of the committee in the political fight in the new state. The statement follows:

The democratic situation in what will be the state of Oklahoma is eminently satisfactory, and I firmly believe we will win a signal victory there next August. I make this statement after a conference with J. B. Thompson, chairman of the Oklahoma delegation. Mr. Thompson is here for the purpose of consulting with the officers of the democratic congressional committee, concerning the campaign in Oklahoma.

He reports the democrats there in fine fighting shape and determined to win all along the line. I have assured Mr. Thompson that his committee and the democrats of Oklahoma will have the heartiest and most enthusiastic support of both the congressional committee in their fight to elect democrats at the polls, as well as their fight to have their constitution approved. Acting under instructions from Chairman James Griggs I have talked lately with a number of the leading democrats of the country, and they will be active in this fight for Oklahoma. I have sent to the state committee of Oklahoma a list of twenty of the leading democrats of the house of representatives who have agreed to take the stump in Oklahoma and be in the thick of the fight from start to finish. Every man who believes in justice, believes that the constitution lately framed by the Oklahoma convention ought to be and will be approved. There are no better or more intelligent citizens in the nation than those who reside in that great new commonwealth. I make this statement advisedly from personal acquaintance with them, and no people have been done a greater injustice than they, being refused statehood so long.

To deny them now what they most desire would be nothing short of a crime, that crime especially applying to the four hundred thousand school children in the new state.

ANTI-STATEHOOD CONSPIRACY.

Developments brought to light in Oklahoma City last night confirm the well established belief that the railroads of Oklahoma are prominently involved in the conspiracy to defer the granting of statehood in jointure to Oklahoma and Indian Territory.

If statehood can be deferred even a single year it will enrich the railroads of Oklahoma to the amount of three and a third millions of dollars, and this amount and more will be saved to the railroads every year that statehood is postponed.

It is estimated with a fair degree of accuracy that the passenger fares collected by the railroads of the two territories that will compose the new state of Oklahoma amount to $10,000,000 a year.

The adoption of the constitution and the establishment of state government will put in force that provision of the constitution restricting passenger fares on all railroads in the state to two cents per mile. When this law becomes effective the revenue from passenger business of these railroads, according to the argument advanced by the railway people, will be reduced to less than $7,000,000.

TWENTY REASONS WHY I AM GOING TO VOTE FOR THE CONSTITUTION.

First. Because it will establish a self government.

Second. Because I am tired of the present condition of affairs.

Third. Because it invokes the guidance of Almighty God in the affairs of the State.

Fourth. Because it provides for a broad and liberal public school system.

Fifth. Because the bill of rights is broad and liberal and guarantees every man protection in life, liberty and property.

Sixth. Because it makes a low tax rate and fixes a maximum.

Seventh. Because it provides for a liberal homestead and exemption.

Eighth. Because it provides for a low rate of interest.

Ninth. Because it puts all power into the hands of the people through the initiative and referendum.

Tenth. Because it prohibits trusts and combines.

Eleventh. Because it provides amply for the control and regulation of corporations.

Twelfth. Because it protects and safeguards the interests of the farmer, the laborer, and it puts the natural man above the artificial.

Thirteenth. Because it provides for a fine judiciary system.

Fourteenth. Because it provides for the primary system of the nomination of candidates.

Fifteenth. Because it creates a department of charities.

Sixteenth. Because it provides against long terms in office.

Seventeenth. Because it provides for a good system of good roads and highways.

Eighteenth. Because it provides for the honest and faithful performance of their duties by all officers.

Nineteenth. Because I am too broad to object to a good thing simply because the other fellow made it.

Twentieth. Because I don't want to be classed with the cranks and kickers.—J. H. Linebaugh, Atoka, I. T.

The MYSTERY of CARNEYCROFT

by JOSEPH BROWN COOKE COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PICCO CORPORATION

CHAPTER XXIII.Another Escape.

It was still early in the evening and such was my anxiety to solve this problem without unnecessary delay that, in spite of my experiences of the day, I resolved to return again to the manhole and see how it happened to have fallen shut and if anything new could be learned from a superficial inspection of the place after dark.

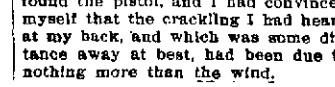

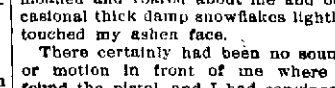

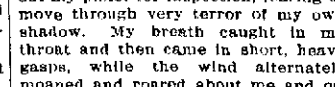

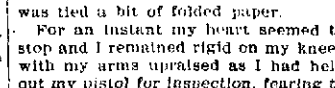

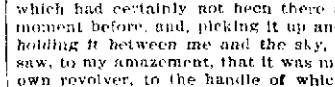

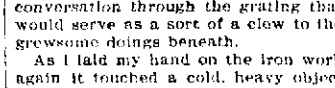

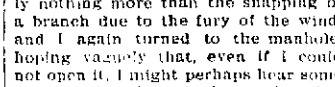

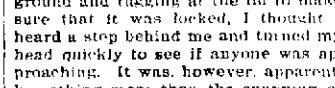

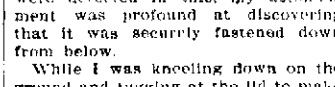

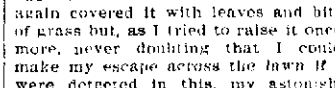

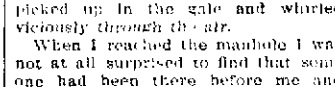

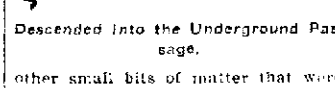

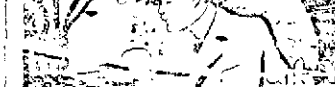

I stopped long enough in the hallway to dispatch a servant to the railway station with my letter to Mac-Ardel so that it would catch the late mail and then, leaving word that I was going out for a short stroll, I put on a heavy coat and left the house.

There was an icy chill in the air that betokened snow in the near future, and I had heard one of the natives say the day before that we would have a storm and a "kol dummed big one, too," before the end of the week.

As I started down the path to the river I could not doubt the accuracy of the fellow's prophecy, and I drew my coat collar well about my neck and shivered fitfully as the rigorous blasts of the coming winter reached through my garments and chilled my very bones.

A sudden drop in temperature followed by heavy snow, in the autumn was not uncommon in this latitude, as I knew full well, and it was usually a serious matter to the farmers, whose fall crops were ruined, many of whose cattle perished, but this year was destined to see such a storm as had not been equaled in many a decade.

The wind howled and whistled through the trees and over the hill-tops and then, when a fall would come, it was emphasized by the dull, heavy moaning of the pines and hemlocks far away in the distance beyond the river. At times I even thought I could feel occasional flakes of snow striking me in the face as I strode on over the turf on my way to the tunnel entrance, but I could not be sure and it might have been only the dust and

At length, and with trembling fingers, I removed the paper from the stock of the weapon and stuffed it into my pocket, so that I could examine it later, and was about to rise nervously to my feet, when I again heard a slight disturbance in the shrubbery to one side of me and saw a man approaching stealthily and apparently on all fours.

With no thought of the consequences and in an actual fit of terror, I raised the pistol and fired at him point-blank, but the cartridge failed to explode or else the chambers were empty, and, with a frantic shriek, I sprang to my feet and threw myself headlong upon him.

He seemed entirely unprepared for this attack, but he made no sound and strove manfully to defend himself as I grappled at his throat and we rolled over and over down the velvet lawn to the river.

I was considerably hampered by my overcoat and having no desire to go into the water with him, I relaxed my efforts somewhat, when, with almost superhuman strength and emitting a cry that indicated a degree of terror equal to my own, he tore himself from my grasp and sped away in the direction of the turnpike.

Peeling now, that I was his master, I dashed madly after him, pulling off my coat as I ran, and I was gaining slowly upon him in spite of the redoubled efforts that he made, when, on the sharp incline that led down to the road, he stumbled and fell and I was upon him again in a moment.

My victory was short lived, however, for as he struggled fiercely to free himself from my grasp and I, with equal fury, strove to choke or beat him into a state of submission, we again rolled over and over in the grass until, as luck would have it, my leg caught in a strand of the tangled wire fence that enclosed the property, and I was out of the way point and once more he succeeded in freeing himself and tore down the road in the direction of the village.

My clothing was torn and mud-stained, my hands and face were bruised and bleeding, I ached in every limb and was well-nigh exhausted with the furious and protracted encounter, and I was hatless and careless into the bargain, but I at least had one cause for congratulation.

In my second wrestle with my hitherto unknown assailant I had been able to get a sufficiently good view of his face to identify him positively and, in spite of the remarkable protestations of ignorance concerning the Carneycroft mystery which I had heard him make to the widow only the night before, and which I was now forced to believe were but part of a little comedy gotten up for my special delectation, my hasty analysis was no other than the long-suffering Jenks.

H. Woodward Withdraws.

To my friends and supporters.

Several months ago I entered the race for the democratic nomination for the office of County clerk. You have stood by me nobly, and would I know, continue so to do on through election day. Notwithstanding many of you from various parts of the country offer me every encouragement and want me to finish the race, still circumstances have so changed with me that I have concluded to withdraw.

In so doing, my friends, I wish you to know I am just as thankful for your support thus far as I would be if I ran on and were elected.

With many thanks to you and the very best wishes for you and yours.

Very sincerely yours,

Henry Woodward.

VOTE FOR R. L. WILLIAMSFor the Supreme Bench---Don't be Deceived by a Corporation Trick.

The information comes that S. C. Treadwell, the railroad attorney, of Tishomingo, is to switch from the race for State Senator to that of the Supreme Bench.

What causes this sudden change of ambition on the part of Mr. Treadwell, the railroad lawyer, and at such a late hour?

It was not supposed that the railroads would permit R. L. Williams to have a seat on the Supreme Bench to construe the railroad provisions that he has so ably written in the Constitution, without opposition.

Corporate wealth does not surrender without a struggle.

When it cannot control it seeks to destroy.

R. L. Williams, as Chairman of the Railroad Committee, served the people and not the railroads.

So let the people be not deceived.

Vote for R. L. Williams, who has been tried as a public servant, rather than for S. C. Treadwell, the railroad lawyer.

Elmer E. L. Kirtley yesterday afternoon performed a wedding ceremony that is perhaps without precedent in Ada. Several wagon loads of movers passed through Ada and a happy young pair who were with them was decided that Ada was the best town in which to be married that they knew of.

According to the world's record book the wedding was the largest ever performed in the city of Ada. The bride was Miss L. Kirtley and the groom was Elmer E. L. Kirtley.

The wedding was performed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kirtley, and was attended by a large number of guests.

DRILL FOR GAS NEAR ADA

Preparations Being Made to Commence Drilling Soon.

Work is being pushed forward in drilling for gas by the company which was granted the franchise by the city council. The place for commencement of operations is located about one and one-half miles northeast of the city. J. R. Greenleaf of the Oklahoma Natural Gas company is here and is looking after the work. A practical man is also here. Timber for the construction of the derricks is being unloaded and hauled to the grounds where drilling is to commence. The gas company men say that the machinery has all been shipped and is now on the way to Ada. It is thought that it will be at least two weeks yet before the actual drilling will commence.

J. M. Ramey for Constable.

In this issue of The News J. M. Ramey announces subject to the democratic primary for the office of constable in Ada township.

Mr. Ramey was born a democrat in Mississippi a good many years ago and has been a consistent one through out his life. For a long time he resided in Texas. Five years ago he removed to Ada where he has been engaged chiefly in the wagon yard and feed business.

He has never held an office, however, he has had a good deal of experience in special deputy in the service of court process. Thus he would assume the duties of constable already familiar with the work. Mr. Ramey is well known and generally liked in Ada. His friends have prevailed upon him to make the race and are bent on having him as one of our best constables. He gives the people a solemn pledge if elected to devote his best energies to the duties of the office.

eloquent Address to Ada Democrats on Congressional Issues.

PICNIC AT STONEWALL

Large Crowd Much to Eat Weaver Makes But on School Land Question.

Stone wall Picnic May 22—A large and well attended crowd of people attended the picnic here yesterday. There was much to eat and drink and all visitors were well entertained. It was a most successful picnic.

One B. W. Weaver was the only one of the candidates for state senator who spoke. He made quite an impression upon the people by his discussion of the school land issue.

Professor Latham principal of the Stonewall school who acted as master of ceremonies in behalf of the citizens invited Mr. Weaver to a man over and deliver an address in the evening on the proper disposition of the state school lands. Consenting after supper Mr. Weaver was greeted by a highly intelligent audience. His views on this all important question seemed to meet with universal favor. At the conclusion of the address he was heartily cheered. Afterward Professor Latham remarked that he himself had given considerable study to school questions and that he was convinced Mr. Weaver's plan is the proper solution to the school land problem.

It is henceforth he expected to advocate that plan.

he people of this vicinity regard Weaver as a quasi citizen of Stonewall since he is materially interested in the welfare of the town.

Apple Twig Borer in the Neglected Orchard

Apple Twig Borer.

a, Beetle dorsal view; b, beetle side view; c, pupa from beneath; d, grub, side view; e, twig showing burrow; f, burrow in timber with pupa at bottom; g, stem of grape showing burrow. All enlarged except stems showing burrows. (Mariett, Farmer's Bulletin 70, Div. Ent., U. S. Dept. of Agr.)

This insect is common on apple, cherry, pear, plum and grape. If often referred to as the grape cane-borer. This beetle is about one-third to one-half inch in length, and dark brown above and black beneath. In early spring it enters the twig by making a hole near a bud, and continues its work by making a burrow several inches in length. The insect matures in the fall, there being but one brood, and for the most part, hibernates in its larval burrow. The eggs are laid in the dying or dead roots of "green briar" (smilax), or in dead roots of the grape. This beetle will seldom become troublesome in a well-kept orchard, as good pruning and general cleanliness about the place will remove all wood in which it is most likely to occur. If, however, a tree is infested the diseased part should be cut away and burned.

MORE TREES TO THE ACRE

sively, which area is equal to that of two of the equilateral triangles formed by the trees. Since the side of 60 degrees equal 866.4, it is evident that this area equals 866 square rod. Figure 2 represents nine trees planted one rod apart in the form of squares, and the inner square represents the exact area occupied by one tree, which area is one square rod. It is now evident that when planting the same distance apart 866 acres will contain as many trees set out by the deitoid system as one acre will where the trees are set out in the form of squares, or 866 acres in the first case equal 190 acres in the second case. Or if a tract of land would contain under the present system of planting 1,000 trees at a given distance apart, it would under the deitoid system contain 1,000/866 or 1.154 trees the same distance apart, or an increase of 15.4 per cent.

With suitable machines the farmer might utilize this system in planting his corn and have this percentage in his favor.

Hardy Ornamental Shrubs

One of the most satisfactory of large shrubs for planting in home grounds is the grand old "snowball." There are several varieties of viburnum, as it is known botanically. The Japanese snowball is smaller than the common American variety, but is a fine bloomer. The "highbush cranberry" closely resembles the snowball in its foliage, and has an additional attraction in its brilliant clusters of red berries which sometimes remain through the winter. In the autumn its foliage turns to bright colors, which remain until freezing weather. The varieties catalogued as "common snowball," viburnum tomentosum and "highbush cranberry" are all excellent shrubs.

IS 300 YEARS OLD

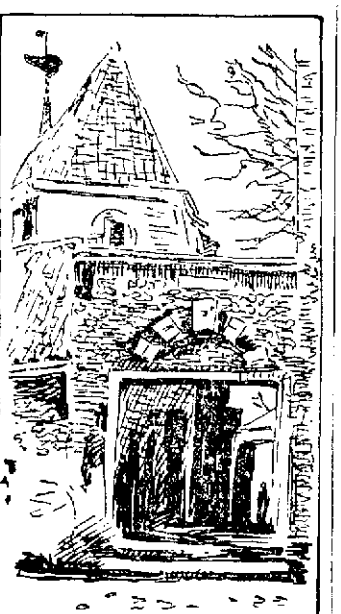

ENGLISH CHURCH IN AMSTERDAM BUILT IN 1607.

Quaint Sanctuary Still Stands and Is in Use as a House of Worship Associated with Pilgrim Fathers.

"In the year of our Lord and Saviour 1607 and on the fourth day of the month of February after the new stile about 4 of the clock in the afternoon, was the Church in the round beginneth opened in the presence of miltneer de Schout, and Dr. Petrus Planckius, minister of the Dutch Church at Amsterdam, and att that present was the pulpit brought in and sett up for the use of the English Church at Amsterdam publicly erected by the consent of the honourable the Senate of the forenamed city. Which their love and bounty towards us of the English nation the Lord repay unto them a thousand fold in this life in the life to come with eternal happiness. Amen."

This extract from the curiously worded record of the English Reformed church at Amsterdam the date of the three hundredth anniversary of the handing over of the picturesque old building to the English colony. The church itself dates from about 1400, and was originally used by nuns. In 1578, when Amsterdam adopted the reformed religion, all the churches passed into the possession of those who adopted the reformed faith, but there is no record of the use made of this particular church between that date and its opening for the use of the English colony.

Congregationalists will be interested to know that this church existed while the Pilgrim fathers were in Amsterdam, and that some of them worshipped within its walls. The church has been considerably enlarged and altered since it came into possession of the English congregation, and its appearance within is quaint but not inelegant. Its present seating accommodation is about 350. This enlargement was made in 1665, when many English families took refuge in this city after the restoration of Charles II. to the throne of England in 1660. Among the interesting features of the church is a brass desk on the pulpit with the initials and date: "W. M. R. anno 1688," together with two candlesticks which were presented by William of Orange and Mary, king and queen of England.

KEEP WATCH OVER BODY.

Weird Vigil Maintained in Vault of Italian Church.

The story of a weird vigil is related by a correspondent at San Remo, Italy, where, in a vault beneath one of the churches watch is being kept night and day over the body of a young Russian woman as it reposes in its coffin. The woman, who was married, suffered from consumption, and about three weeks ago her death from that disease was certified, whereupon her husband had the body removed to its present resting place. Eleven days later, however, the woman's relatives arrived from Russia, and at their request the coffin was opened. A remarkable discovery was then made. The body showed absolutely no traces of decomposition. The skin was soft, and retained its life tints. The lips were crimson and the wide, open eyes conveyed an uncanny impression that they saw. Doctors were hastily summoned, but were unable to make any satisfactory pronouncement on the strange affair. A watch is accordingly now being maintained in case of a return of animation.

Wild Ostriches Grow Tame.

A group of six wild ostriches were seen on the commonage on Saturday afternoon. The large birds were disporting themselves on an ant heap only a few yards from the road. The little group seems to have made the east end of the commonage and the government reserve their home, and are often to be met with.

So tame are they that on a person approaching they simply get up from the road, where they are often lying, and walk a few yards on to the void and gaze composedly at the passer by. —Rhodesia Herald

BRUIN WAS PLAYING POSSUM.

Very Evident That Animal Never Had Been Quite Dead.

Bill Stimson, the veteran guide and trapper of the Rangely region, has an impediment in his speech, and many quaint stories have been told about him, says the Boston Herald. With a companion he was visiting some bear traps they had set, when they found a large bear had gotten into one of the traps, broken the chain, and gone off with the trap on his foot.

They followed the trail some distance, when they saw the bear in a little gully ahead of them. Both fired, the bear falling over and remaining motionless. Being rather tired from the tramp they sat down to rest and smoke. After some little time, thinking they must be moving, Bill arose, drew his hunting knife, walked down to where the bear was, and picking up a hind foot, started to remove the belt.

At the first cut of the knife the bear gave a kick that landed Bill several feet away. Jumping up excitedly, Bill cried:

"Bobby gosh, that b-b-bear hain't d-d-dead, and he hain't b-b-been d-d-dead all day."

OUT OF THE PERPENDICULAR.

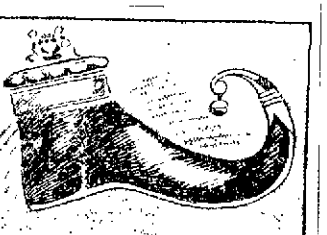

Peculiar Crooked House on the Estate of English Earl.

On the estate of Earl Dudley at Hinxley, Staffs, England, there is a curious habitation known as "The Crooked House." It is altogether out of the perpendicular, and slants towards the south end, which is heavily shored up with thick red-brick buttresses. These peculiarities are the result of mining operations—the destruction of the earth in three parts being completely "honeycombed." The clocks on the walls, although absolutely perpendicular, as their pendulums testify, appear to be hanging sideways at a very pronounced angle. A short glass shelf, one end of which appears to be a foot higher than the other, proves it to be absolutely level; while in the tap-room is a table which is apparently slanting, but on which if round marbles are placed at the seemingly lower end they roll to all appearance uphill to the top of the table and fall over with a bump.

Insane Woman's Growsome Deed.

A growsome spectacle was witnessed in the Montmartre cemetery at St. Etienne, France, the other evening. One of the keepers going round found a woman crouching among what looked like fragments of chips and piles of earth, in which she was digging vigorously with her nails. Going to the spot he was horrified to see an opened grave and the exposed bodies of three children, which had been taken from their smashed coffins. One of the bodies the woman clutched in her hands. Dragging her away by force to the superintendent, it became apparent from a few questions that the poor creature was insane. The children were her own, and sorrow had deprived her of reason. She had not into the cemetery with a pick by night.

DRINKING CUP.

This cup is sixteenth century German. It is of gilt leather with silver gilt mounts.

Fox and a Rabbit.

A fox was seen coming down a pass in the hills followed by a rabbit, which came along at a smart pace and seemed impelled by an overpowering curiosity, says Country Life. Fox and rabbit presently disappeared into a patch of covert, and almost immediately the fox was seen to emerge with the unfortunate rabbit dead in its jaws.

The whole tableau was witnessed by persons of unimpeachable veracity, one of them a very careful observer of wild life. It was perfectly evident to them that the fox had in some way fascinated the rabbit and was consciously following out a plan devised for its destruction. As for the rabbit, it was clearly incapable of avoiding its doom.

Ruffs Always Becoming

TULLE, LACE, CHIFFON AND FEATHERS REPLACE FUR.

Some of the Popular Fancies in Scarfs Can Easily Be Made at Home —Little Capes are Smart.

To many women, and especially to those past their youth, a boa or neck ruff is so becoming that even after winter furs are laid aside coats of tulle, lace, chiffon or feathers, such as ostrich or marabou, are adopted.

Pretty Neck Ruffs.

Many of these scarfs can easily be made at home, the two models illustrated being especially practical, but scarfs of marabou and ostrich feathers are also very fashionable, and can be had in the shops at quite moderate prices.

There are, too, some very attractive scarfs of soft lace laid over sheer silk, with a veiling of chiffon, and bordered

HERE ARE SOME GOOD FORFEITS

Bound to Furnish Amusement at Evening Party.

1. Act in pantomime the visit of a doctor.
2. Make a fool's cap and place on the head of the most dignified person present.
3. Deliver an oration lasting ten minutes on "George Washington."
4. Sing "Mary Had a Little Lamb" in operatic style.
5. Draw a picture of a cow.
6. Tell a pathetic story.
7. Sing a comic song.
8. Sing a lullaby to a sofa pillow.
9. Compose a jingle of four lines.
10. Tell a laughable story.
11. Make a shadow picture on the wall.
12. Show an imitation of a small boy being sent to bed.
13. Sneeze in five different ways.
14. Shake hands in ten different styles.
15. Recite "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck" in dramatic manner.
16. Laugh in five different ways.
17. Imitate two cats fighting.
18. Show how a man acts when he is lost.
19. Smile in five different ways.
20. Tip your hat in as many ways as possible.
21. Imitate the walk of a duke.
22. Auction off an umbrella.
23. Be a book agent and sell a book.
24. Show how a chap writes his first love letter.
25. Name the things you would do with a million dollars.

A Splinter Tea.

This party was given by a dozen bachelor maids as the farewell party to one of their number who had just announced her engagement. It was very funny, each girl was requested to bring the photograph of a man whom she was supposed to have "ruined" and to tell her reasons why she preferred to be a spinster. They were also asked to come dressed as typical old maids, with curlers and glasses, etc. Bachelor's buttons were used on the table and a few blossoms attached to the favors, which were tiny kettles. After the dainty repast cards were passed with the following content:

1. Always in pairs. (Cup and saucer.)
2. Would they were here. (Jelly boys) boy dolls.
3. From curls. (Kid curlers.)
4. Objects of envy. (Preserved pears—pairs.)
5. Warranted to pop. (Bottle of ginger ale.)
6. A solace. (Tea.)
7. Sadly missed. (Sugar kisses.)
8. Cause of woe. (A bit of spiced tongue.)
9. Courtship. (A bowl of mush, two spoons, sugar.)
10. A lover. (A diamond ring.)
11. Our tears. (Salt.)
12. Left over. (A heart.)

These objects were on a table in the dining-room and the hostess said it was the "spinster menu." Afterwards the time was spent in hearing why the maidens had refused their offers and their reasons for preferring "spinsterhood." Of course it was all done to jokingly try to make the engaged girl regret her bargain. The guests reported "the best fun ever" and at last accounts the little bride-to-be was busy with the joyful wedding preparations.

A Sewing Party.

A correspondent writes that she wishes to give a surprise party for her sister who is to be married late in May and wishes to know if it would be proper for her to give a linen shower or should such an affair be left for the friends?

I should advise letting the "shower" be given by some one outside the family, but the sister may arrange a very pleasant surprise by following out these suggestions: Write the invitations on heart-shaped cards, with "thimbles" in one corner, so all will be prepared to sew. Have ready for hanging a half dozen dish towels, dusters, roller towels and heavy muslin for shoe cloths, which will be greatly appreciated by both the new housewife and the bride. This will be a pleasant surprise for the bride-elect. For refreshments, pass chicken salad sandwiches, chocolate and tea (it is always well to give a choice of beverages), olives, nuts, heart-shaped cakes iced in pink and white, decorated with blanch almonds, ice cream or a sherbet. It would be pretty to lay a pink or white rose on each plate.

MADAME MERRI.

FOULARD RIPPLES INTO FAVOR

Material Promises to Be Extremely Popular This Season.

Foulard, from all present indications, will be extremely smart this year, although it has been rather out of favor for some time. So many of the newest models call for a material that is rather soft and clinging and easily draped that soft silks will be in nearly as great demand as was the case last year.

For rough and ready shirt waist dresses foulards are excellent. Even the less expensive quality wears admirably and the silk is delightfully light and cool.

The polka dots of last spring and summer have given way to stripes of all widths and colors. There is the wide one-inch stripe and the narrowest threadlike band of colors, and some of the foulards have strips of graduated widths arranged in clusters or vertically gradually from wide to narrow.

Good effects can be obtained in the wide tucks by placing the solid colors together wherever the material needs to be gathered in, as about the waist and hips. Sometimes the stripes are in two or more tones of the same shade and again the white stripe against any color design is seen.
